on
MULTIDISTRICT LITIGATION

IN RE: NEW YORK TAX FORECLOSURE SURPLUS LITIGATION

MDL No. 3117

ORDER DENYING TRANSFER

Before the Panel:* Plaintiffs in 31 actions move under 28 U.S.C. § 1407 to centralize this litigation in the Northern District of New York. The litigation consists of 35 actions—three putative class actions and 32 individual or multi-plaintiff actions—pending in three adjoining New York districts, as listed on Schedule A. The Panel has been notified of seven potentially-related actions pending in the Eastern, Northern, and Western Districts of New York. Plaintiffs in the Northern District of New York Steele and Southern District of New York O’Hara putative class actions support the motion, while plaintiffs in the Southern District of New York Ramsey and Wolpert individual actions oppose centralization. Defendants are some 34 New York municipalities and associated individual defendants.<sup>1</sup> All responding defendants either oppose centralization or oppose the inclusion of the actions against them in any MDL.

On the basis of the papers filed and the hearing session held, we conclude that Section 1407 centralization is not necessary for the convenience of the parties and witnesses or to further the just and efficient conduct of the litigation. Plaintiffs filed these actions in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court’s ruling in Tyler v. Hennepin County, 598 U.S. 631 (2023), which held that a government entity’s retention of surplus proceeds after the sale of a property for unpaid property taxes, without adequate means for the foreclosed property owner to recover the surplus proceeds, is a taking of private property for public use without just compensation in violation of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. Plaintiffs allege that the county or city defendants foreclosed on their properties for unpaid taxes, and sold or retained title to the properties without returning to plaintiffs the amount by which the properties' sale price or value exceeded the tax debts. They assert identical claims that defendants violated the Takings Clause of the Fifth Amendment, and most assert additional overlapping claims for unjust enrichment and violation of the Excessive Fines clause of the federal or New York Constitution.

The central factual questions to be resolved in each case, however—whether the property's value exceeded the amount of plaintiffs' tax debts, whether plaintiffs were afforded an adequate procedure for seeking to have any surplus returned to them, whether plaintiffs timely pursued any such procedure, and whether there are any co-owners of the properties or lienholders with potential claims—will be unique to each case. In addition, plaintiffs concede that the procedures and practices for foreclosing on properties differed from one county or city to the next. Thus, while actions against any particular defendant may involve some overlapping discovery regarding those procedures, there are at least 30 different county defendants and four different city defendants, and no defendant is named in more than three actions. In these circumstances, there would be few, if any, efficiencies to be gained by centralizing the actions for common discovery.

Movants argue that there are numerous threshold issues common to all actions, including which statute of limitations governs the actions; whether Tyler v. Hennepin County applies to foreclosures completed before the Tyler decision was issued; which provisions of the federal and New York Constitutions apply; whether plaintiffs must file a notice of claim under the New York General Municipal Law before they proceed with these actions; what common law causes of action are available under New York law; and whether recent amendments to New York's Real Property Tax Law<sup>2</sup> will have an impact on these actions. These are all issues of law, not fact. The Panel repeatedly has held that the presence of common issues of law does not justify Section 1407 transfer. See In re Nat'l Ass'n for Advancement of Multijurisdiction Practice Litig., 52 F. Supp. 3d 1377, 1378 (J.P.M.L. 2014) (denying transfer because "common legal questions are insufficient to satisfy Section 1407's requirement of common factual questions"). Should there be any inconsistencies in the various courts' rulings on these issues, they can be resolved through appeals, all of which would be decided by the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

In these circumstances, informal coordination seems preferable to centralization. See In re Best Buy Co., Inc., Cal. Song-Beverly Credit Card Act Litig., 804 F. Supp. 2d 1376, 1378 (J.P.M.L. 2011) ("[C]entralization under Section 1407 should be the last solution after considered review of all other options."). All cases against each defendant already are pending in the same district. Moving plaintiffs in 30 actions are represented by the same counsel, who also represents plaintiffs in four of the potentially related actions. Plaintiffs in the Northern District of New York Merckx putative class action are co-movants, and counsel in the other two putative class actions state that they too have been coordinating with movants' counsel and will continue to do so. Cooperation among the relatively few involved counsel seems eminently feasible.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the motion for centralization of these actions is denied.
